COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Nels Johnson was brought up on Thursday before Major Belcher, charged with the murder of Peter Johnson. Constable Mott was the only witness called. It appears that Nels Johnson and Peter Johnson, the murdered man, had been together. According to the statement made by the accused the two men had not had a quarrel, but that Nels Johnson had been in the neighborhood on their return home they had a quarrel, Nels struck Peter with the flat of an axe, the latter grabbed his rifle, which was seized by Nels, who pushed it back, when it was discharged, killing Peter. The accused was warned by the police that any statement made by him would be used as evidence. He, however, showed the police where he had buried the body.
The prisoner was committed for trial.

On Saturday afternoon a man named Shappard hired a delivery horse and rig from J. Lublock. When about to be up in front of Martin's harness store, the horse took fright and started. Shappard held on and was dragged as far as the Imperial Bank, the horse then broke clear away going down the street at full gallop. At the corner of Queen's street the buggy collided with a wagon smashing the wheel and upsetting. Fortunately no one was injured.

At the last meeting of the W. C. T. U. held at the home of Mrs. Phillips, on College avenue, there was a digression from the regular form of business. Besides the members there were also a number of visitors present. After the devotional exercises, during which a heart searching bible reading was conducted by Mrs. (Rev.) T. C. Buchanan, the meeting took the form of an "at home," in honor of the returned members, Mrs. Jas. McDonald and Mrs. Buchanan, who had spent several months in the east. Mrs. Thos. Bellamy, then gave an address of welcome, to which each lady made a brief reply, thanking the union for the very cordial reception tendered, after which a "social hour" was spent, ice cream and cake were served by the members followed by a literary and musical programme. Readings were given by Mrs. Beals and Mrs. Petrie, and vocal solos by Mrs. Sargeon, Miss Bellamy and Mrs. John Kelly. At this close, all felt, that a pleasant and profitable afternoon had been spent, and the ladies, in whose honor the entertainment had been given, were greatly pleased with this expression of appreciation from their fellow workers.—Com.

OTHER PEBBLES ON THE BEACH

Alberta has attracted the greatest share of the movement of people from the United States to Canada for several years past. This has been so much the case that it has been looked upon as a matter of course. It is evident, however, that an organized effort is being made to direct this immigration elsewhere, and we in Alberta will require to be very much alive in order to retain our position of pre-eminence. The heavy land purchases that have been made in Assiniboia and Saskatchewan by wealthy United States companies means that those companies and every influence they command will be used to direct the tide of immigration towards their lands, and the country adjoining. The wet of the present and past seasons has been of the greatest assistance to them and they are making the most of the advantage. As showing the parties who are interested in these large purchases with a view to colonization and the means taken to arouse and keep up interest, the following clipping from a recent Winnipeg paper will answer very well:

"Our excursion," said the colonel, "will leave St. Paul on a special train on Wednesday and will arrive in Winnipeg over the Great Northern and C. P. R. lines at about 9:30 or 10 o'clock in the morning, giving the members a good opportunity of seeing and taking part in your loyal celebration. After spending the day in Winnipeg the party will, on the morning of the 27th, leaving here in our special train at 8:30 o'clock, be taken over the Curman branch to Souris and from Souris to Komaty, over the main line to Regina. At the latter point a day will be made until Saturday morning, in order to give the Americans a chance of looking over the country. A daylight run will then be made between Regina and Prince Albert, as this is necessary to permit them to see what is considered one of the best wheat belts in the west. Several days will be spent in the vicinity before the party returns to Winnipeg.

"Our party will include among others the following well known American officials, bankers and capitalists:

"Governor R. Van Sant, of Minnesota; ex-Governor John Lynd, of Minnesota; Hon. Justice Collins, of the supreme court of Minnesota; Governor Cummings, of Iowa; G. Thorpe, of the Park National Bank, New York; James McDonald, of the Hanover National Bank, New York; B. Morgan, of the First National Bank of Chicago; E. D. Hurlburt, vice-president of the Merchants' Loan & Trust Co. of Chicago; Robert Stuart, president of the American Exchange National Bank of Chicago; Hon. James H. Eccles, ex-Comptroller of Currency, now president of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago; Vice-President Wellington, of the Illinois Central Railway; Henry R. Black, assistant manager of the Bank of Montreal; Chicago A. S. White, vice-president of the Continental Packing Co. of Chicago."

There will also be in the party well known bankers of the States of Iowa, Nebraska, of the Twin Cities and Duluth.

The Duluth party is composed largely of members of the Saskatchewan Valley Land Co., of which Colonel A. D. Davidson, of Duluth, is president. It also includes Geo. C. Howe, J. L. Washburn and A. D. McRae. Other members of the party of visitors who have accepted the invitation to look over Western Canadian lands are Horace S. Rich, of Red Wing, Minn.; M. M. Williams, Little Falls, Minn.; F. E. Kenaston, Minn.; G. F. Piper, Minneapolis, W. D. Douglas, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and A. K. Davis, Little Falls, Minn.

FALL WHEAT.

William Lang, of Spruce Grove, brought in a sample of fall wheat, measuring 45 inches in length, which was sown on August 9th last, and pulled on the 27th inst. The seed, which was procured from the Dowling Milling Company, is of the hard variety, known as "Turkey."

Some forty farmers in the vicinity sowed small quantities. George Emerson, of Stony Plain, put in some on the 16th August, from which he expects a yield of at least 40 bushels to the acre.

At Pincher Creek fall wheat has been grown with success for 6 or 7 years. Experience has taught that sowing should be done from the 24th July to 1st August.

Turkey fall wheat is much appreciated by millers as it ranks very close to rye wheat. This was proved at a competition held before the Gravel agricultural college, a short time ago. Rye was taken as the standard and 100 points were allowed. All kinds of fall and winter wheat were admitted into the competition and the Turkey fall variety scored 95 points.

Success on these lines will remove all chance of injury to wheat crops by an early fall.

—W. V. Bennett, Canadian immigration agent at Omaha, Nebraska, came as far as Lacombe on Friday's train. His intention was to accompany the delegates, who came to the Willow Creek country, where they propose taking up land for themselves and friends.

LOCAL

—Seven coaches filled with passengers left Calgary on Friday morning.

—Dr. A. Allen Nichols, of Winnipeg, is here looking over the country with a view to remaining.

—One hundred and two immigrants left Halifax for Edmonton on Thursday, the 19th inst. All are foreigners.

—The Fort Saskatchewan, four-horse stage left on Saturday morning with six passengers. C. F. Stewart had a heavy load with passengers and mail.

—The Northwest government has given an order to J. Walter for a ferry 1432 intended for service on the Saskatchewan at Fort Pitt.

—Alfred Bliss, plumber and steam fitter, from Montreal, has opened up in the old harness store, west of the Queen's hotel, formerly occupied by Dave Collins.

—F. F. Tins, has received a letter from Mr. F. W. Heubach, the secretary of the Winnipeg Industrial Association, stating that he hopes to visit the Edmonton fair.

—E. J. Vernon, of Turtle Mountain district, Manitoba, arrived on Friday's train looking for a location for self and six sons. Crops were looking well on Turtle Mountain when he left home.

—Calgary Herald, Winnipeg, June 20.—Jas. A. Campbell, a well known Winnipegger, died suddenly yesterday of heart disease while on the steamer from Norway House to West Selkirk. He was eldest son of Robert Campbell, a Hudson's Bay factor, now deceased, and brother of Glen Campbell, of Dauphin, Man.

—During the present season 17 scows have been built at J. Walter's boat building yard, viz: Hudson's Bay Co. 9, Roman Catholic mission, Onion Lake, 4, Rev. D. J. Matheson, Saddle Lake, 2, E. Brosseau, 1, Galician immigrants. In addition to these six were built by parties who purchased the lumber from Mr. Walter's yard.

—Many strange sights are to be seen on the streets of Edmonton, but one of the strangest was a team which was in use on Friday and Saturday last by a settler from Beaver Creek. A horse and a bull were hitched together to a wagon, which was being loaded with implements and supplies required by the owner of the team. The animals seemed quite resigned to their strange companionship, and worked well together. The comments of spectators were many and various. Some thought it was intended as a joke, but enquiry developed the fact that it was anything but a joke; it was a result of stern necessity. The settler had had a team of horses but had lost one of them. He had to harness the bull or quit farming for the season. He decided not to quit farming.

—Ninety intending settlers left Calgary on Friday's train. They distributed themselves at points along the C. & E. as follows: Didsbury 4, Red Deer 5, Lacombe 10, Ponoka 7, Wetaskiwin 15, Leduc 19, Edmonton 30. The majority are Americans and many are acting as delegates.

—In a Herald report of a piano recital held recently in Calgary the following occurs: "Owing to the cancellation of a train Mr. Stutchbury was unable to be present, much to the regret of the audience. His place, however, was acceptably taken by J. L. Johnson, of Edmonton, who received enthusiastic applause for his rendering of Michael Watson's song, 'Only the Sound of a Voice.'"

—An important real estate deal was completed on Thursday last. The southwest corner lot on Jasper avenue and First street, H. B. R., together with the adjoining lot, was sold by Messrs. McDougall & Secord, the owners, to Mr. L. Bureau for the sum of $10,000, being at the rate of $100 per foot. Mr. Bureau is arranging for the immediate erection of a large 50 room, three story hotel. The building will be of brick veneer, will have a 50 foot frontage on Jasper avenue and 100 foot frontage on First street, each wing to have a depth of 35 feet. The dining room and billiard room will each be 35 feet by 40 feet. This building will be heated with hot air and will be fitted with bath rooms and all modern conveniences. Appliances for the removal of the building used by Dr. Goodwin, are already on the ground. When completed the hotel will be occupied by Messrs. Laurencelle and Corriveau.

DISGRACEFUL RAILWAY SERVICE

For the third time this season traffic, travel and mail services have been stopped on the C. & E. railway for from three to ten days. This is becoming monotonous. And people are asking each other if something cannot be done about it. Is a railway company to be permitted to treat its contracts and the service it owes the public so lightly. A railway is in a different position from any other business enterprise. Not only does it monopolize the traffic of the region which it serves, but it creates business conditions which are absolutely dependent on the continuance of its service. Some years ago a mail at intervals of three or four days was a satisfactory service. But with the growth of the country a daily mail has become a greater necessity than the semi-weekly mail was then.

It may be said that the traffic has been stopped by an act of providence, and that therefore the company is not responsible. But that is not the fact. In every case of a washout, and certainly in this latest case—the company had engines on both sides of the break, which might have been used to keep up the mail and passenger service, the transfer from the train south of the break to that north of it being made by team. Had this been done there would have been little or no interruption of either mail or passenger service. It could have been done in every case, but it was not done in any case. The company seemed to think that they were under no obligation in the matter. If the train got through, well and good, the mail went top. If the train did not go through neither did the mail.

The time has certainly come for the post office department to bring the railway company to a sense of their obligations to the public. The country has been paying $80,000 a year for eleven years for the carriage of the mails, and is entitled to good service for the money. It is for the post office department to see that there is no more shirking of responsibility by the company in case of a break in the track from any cause.

A further word on that point is in order. There has been bad weather and possibly some of the washouts have been unavoidable. But the company is responsible for the delay in repairing them, and that delay has been without excuse in every case.

Besides the weather is not altogether responsible for the breaks that have occurred. The road bed has been allowed to go down in condition that very little is necessary to cause a break and to make slow the work of repairing it, even if a fair amount of energy were used.

The business effect of the frequent stoppages of traffic on the C. & E., especially during the season of immigration and land prospecting, cannot be overestimated. If the government has any authority whereby the company can be compelled to keep the road in condition, to promptly repair breaks when they unavoidably occur, and to keep up the mail and passenger service, it should be exercised to the fullest extent. The country has paid well for the C. & E. and the country is entitled to efficient and reliable service over it. The fact that the line is not operated by its owners makes no difference to the public. That does not shift the responsibility. The C. & E. company received the bonuses and should be held for the service. If that company cannot operate its own road, it should sell out to a company that can. In the meantime it should be responsible for the operation of the road—especially so far as that operation depends on the condition of the road bed.

THE BRACKMAN-KER MILLING COMPANY

The Victoria Daily Colonist of June 15th, has a page devoted to the Brackman-Ker Milling Co., whose headquarters are in Victoria, with branch mills at New Westminster, B. C., and Strathcona, Alberta, besides receiving elevators at Leduc, Wetaskiwin, Lacombe and Red Deer, Alberta, and distributing warehouses at Vancouver, Nelson and other points. The various mills, elevators and warehouses of the company are pictured, including those in Alberta, but the picture which brings out most strongly the far reaching enterprise of the firm is a view of the recent loading of oats at Vancouver for South Africa. The enterprise of this firm in demonstrating the value of Alberta oats and in pushing for markets both for the finished oats and for the raw material, has been most beneficial to this district. Everyone in Alberta wishes the B. & K. company continued abundant success.

A STORY OF OLD DAYS.

The Historical and Scientific society of Manitoba has just issued a very interesting pamphlet relating to the early life of Manitoba and the Northwest, or to be more in form, of the Red River and the Saskatchewan. It is entitled: "The First Canadian Woman in the Northwest," the story of Marie Anne Gaboury, wife of John Baptiste Lajimoniere, who arrived in the Northwest in 1807, and died at St. Boniface at the age of 96 years, by M. L'Abbe G. Dugas, translated by Miss J. M. Morico. The account is interesting for many reasons; one being that it gives the founding of one of the principal French half-breed families of Manitoba; another that it gives a close view of life in the earliest days of settlement, both on the Red River and on the Saskatchewan; and still another because it gives a glimpse of life at Edmonton in the very early years of the century, just ended.

Mrs. Lajimoniere was born in 1782 in the county of Maskinonge, Quebec, r.M. Lajimoniere was of the same neighborhood, and before his marriage had spent five years in the Northwest. The marriage took place in Maskinonge in April, 1807. During the same year the Lajimonières came to the Red River with the Northwest trading company's brigade of boats, following up the Ottawa, crossing the height of land to Lake Nipissing, then following the north shores of Lakes Huron and Superior to Fort William, then the boat route by way of Rainy Lake and Lake of the Woods to the Red river, reaching Pembina for the winter. Next spring the Lajimonières started for the Saskatchewan by canoe. The account continues:

"They arrived at the Fort of the Prairies by the end of August. M. Lajimoniere had spent a winter there two years previous and being acquainted with the factor, Mr. Bird, obtained a place for himself and his wife in the Fort for the autumn and winter.

"The Fort of the Prairies, which is now called Edmonton, was the most important fort in the west at that time. Being the great reunion point for the Indians, all the tribes met there, Blackfoot, Assiniboines, Sarcees, Blood and Crees. When these different bands were assembled around the Fort they were often the cause of great uneasiness to the factor and his employees who regarded them with very serious fears. More than one battle took place in which blood was freely spilt and more than one combatant met his death. The men in charge of the Fort had need of invincible courage and muscles of steel to rule these savages who acknowledged no sovereignty but that enforced by courage and strength. They must be ruled by fear just as we tame wild animals by exerting that power.

Madame Lajimoniere wintered for four consecutive years at the Fort of the Prairies, arriving at that post in the autumn of 1808 she only returned to Red River in the spring of 1811. During the winter her husband was absent the greater part of the time visiting his snarers and getting furs. He was not engaged in the service of the company but hunted on his own account and like the Indians brought his skins to trade at the Fort. In the spring when the fur season was over he left the Fort to hunt buffalo and his wife accompanied him, mounted on horseback she would ride for a whole day over the prairies and through the woods. When her husband found a favorable spot for the chase the tents would be pitched and they would stay there for some time.

The history recites a number of characteristic adventures of the years 1809-11. In the latter year the Lajimonières returned to the Red River and settled permanently at St. Boniface. The history then gives a number of details of interest connected with the Red River settlement, including the strife between the Hudson's Bay and Northwest companies and the first attempts at farming, including the devastations first by the grasshoppers and then by the floods, a strange start for a region whose name now stands for abundance throughout the world.

The Lajimonières had four children; Reine, Jean Baptiste, Josette and Benjamin.

FROM THE MOUNTAINS.

James Jock trader, came in Thursday night from Prairie river. He left here in May with supplies and reached his home on June 1st where he remained nine days.

While at his mountain home Mr. Jock says that a very light drizzling rain fell most of the time but not sufficient to raise the creeks. He found the barley and oats, sown by his partner on the 16th May, about 5 or 6 inches high and looking well, the garden stuff was also doing well.

A supply of provisions being necessary, a start for Edmonton was made on the 9th inst. Travelling was good until the Athabasca divide was reached, then owing to a very heavy fall of snow the trail was bad, creeks were booming and progress slow. There was a frost at the "divide" on the 11th, but this of course was due to the high altitude. The heavy snow fall had broken down willows and small trees. The Pembina river had raised about 12 feet.

Mr. Jock brought three men with him to continue the improvements to the trail which he says will now be a great advantage to travellers.

The King's Illness.

Lodge, June 25.—The King, it is now known, had been critically ill for more than a week. It was thought only courteous to discredit this information as long as a possibility remained that Thursday's great ceremony could take place.

Following is an authentic account of the origin of attack. The King had been in fairly good health since his arrival in June 14. He was tired from the continuous round of functions, and extremely nervous from many weeks of bad weather, which had spoiled many of his plans.

Sir Francis Laking, who had been giving close attention to His Majesty for several days, feared that this nervousness was a symptom of post-operative collapse, and he therefore warned the King not to undertake the arduous program at Aldershot on June 15 and 16, but to rest in preparation for the great strain of this week. The King, however, persisted in sticking to the program, and, moreover, insisted on close personal supervision of all details of the coronation. It was this interference that wore out the endurance of Lord Carrington, the Lord Chamberlain, and caused him to retire during the heavy downpour at Aldershot. This completed the royal shot. Then followed what is described as a fainting fit. The King simply collapsed suddenly. He was raised, and again describing his sensations to the doctor who was first summoned, said: "I felt as if two heavy hands had suddenly been placed on my shoulder and crushed me down." There was also a slight chill and a sharp attack of cholera morbus.

That was on Saturday, and the King was put to bed and remained there until Monday, when he was considerably better and was taken in a carriage to Windsor. The symptoms of twitching of the muscles of the face alarmed Sir Francis Laking and Sir Thomas Barlow, the English specialist in paralytic affections, was summoned. What has been described as a slight stroke of paralysis on Tuesday afternoon was really very slight, but the patient was very weak physically and rather dull mentally. Sir Thomas Barlow remained with the King every moment, when he was within doors, and in his brief drives in a closed carriage. It became a serious problem how to control His Majesty's mental condition, for a conviction seized the King that he was fated never to wear the crown; in other words, that the prophecy would be fulfilled that he would reign, but would never be crowned. He incessantly studied his own symptoms and insisted that the doctors take his temperature frequently. Nevertheless he gained in strength after Wednesday, and, by careful dieting the doctors hoped he would be able to undergo Thursday's ceremony providing all intervening engagements were cancelled. It was really against the physicians' advice that the King returned to London on Monday. His reason for insisting was that such a radical change in the plans would cause alarm among the people. Not a word has been printed in any paper in England to the effect that his illness was in the slightest degree serious. On the other hand all of the King's entourage had calmly and flatly denied that his condition was anything but good.

It was the excitement of Monday's great popular welcome as much as anything which caused a revival of the serious abdominal trouble. Cholera morbus symptoms had well nigh disappeared, but there remained sufficient weakness or irritation to set up inflammation of the vermiform appendix, and there was a fully developed case of appendicitis. A consultation was speedily held and it was quickly decided that the coronation ceremony could not take place at present, and that a prompt operation was the only course available to save the King's life. This decision was acted on with the utmost speed. The public were notified of the postponement, the announcement of which fell on the city like a bolt from the blue sky and the necessary paraphernalia for the operation were quickly requisitioned from the nearest hospital. The news of the King's condition came with great suddenness even in official circles, and to those nearest the court. At 11:30 o'clock no intimation of it had been received at the admiralty. Statements as to driving exercise taken by the King on Sunday and Monday, it is now believed were without foundation. The King necessarily remained in his room the greater part of last week and was attended by his physicians.

London, June 25.—The Telegraph declared that the illness from which the King suffered last week did not afford any absolute indication of the ailment which forced the operation, but on Monday night and yesterday morning a change set in which necessitated a minute examination, and after careful deliberation the doctors arrived at the conclusion that an immediate operation was imperative in order to avoid the chances of blood poisoning, which would have been inevitably fatal. When the King was informed of the decision he received the intelligence with an extraordinary calm and with an absolute sense of relief. He seemed to those around him to have no fear of the suffering he was about to undergo. The main idea in his mind was infinite, inexpressible regret for what he knew would prove a bitter disappointment to the people. Indeed his first words, when told that a serious operation was obligatory, are said to have been: "Operation or no operation, I won't disappoint the people. I must go to the Abbey."

Not long after the operation the Prince of Wales saw his father, whom he found far stronger than he expected. The King then told him that he felt actually more comfortable than before the operation.

It is known that the King's illness is of a very serious nature, and that the night's cabinet meeting was solely concerned with certain points of constitutional procedure in the event of a fatal issue.

The Telegraph's account of the operation says an incision was made near the groin and was carried upward with an outer slant for close to four inches. The obstruction having been excised, a system of tubing was resorted to, to make the intestine available for the natural functions. Of course the operation was performed under an anesthetic, the patient being removed from his couch for the purpose. Such operations inevitably involve considerable risk, notwithstanding the strides made in modern surgery.

Private information from Buckingham Palace substantially bears out the official bulletin issued at 10:30 o'clock, except that the King had rather a worse night than was indicated therein. His Majesty, however, is resting easily and was sleeping at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

The exodus of the coronation embassies already has commenced. The next two or three days doubtless will see the departure of all but one or two, and these will close up their official establishments and remain in London merely as private persons.

THE TANNERY

Tanning which was started here, a few years ago, on a very small scale, has lately become an industry of considerable importance. A visit was made recently to the establishment owned and operated by J. H. Bedard and situated on "Waller's Flat."

When the business was started three round tubs or vats afforded sufficient capacity to treat the hides throughout the process.

To-day, though no great strides have been made, the tanning house is fitted with seven large tubs 5 feet by 8 feet with a depth of 4 feet.

The process of tanning is somewhat lengthy, as a rough description will show.

The hides are first steeped in a solution of salt in order to remove the blood, they are then placed in a tank of fresh slacked lime, which loosens the hair, from this they are shifted to a water tank in order to free them from lime. The hides are now taken one at a time and placed on a circular bench and "fleshed" that is shaved down on the flesh side, the skin is then reversed and all hair removed by scraping; it is then placed in the "bait" vat which absorbs all traces of lime. It is then dried and returned to the bait vat.

All skins go through a stretching and finishing process which differs according to the use for which it is intended.

Harness leather is dyed and oiled after tanning, lidgo leather is dyed with Japonica while undergoing the process of tanning. The latter as well as lace leather, for belting, is made of choice unbranded hides only.

Three months is required for the process of tanning harness leather; lidgo stock is ready in about two months and lace leather can be turned out in a month. A large order is in hand for sheep skins to be used as saddle lining by the Great West Saddlery Co., Calgary, for whom lidgo and lace leather is also manufactured.

All kinds of robes and fur skins are tanned, a fair business being done with farmers who use robes made from the hides of domestic cattle.

Manitoba Markets.

Commercial, June 21.—The demand for oats for shipment has fallen off considerably and dealers say it is difficult to find buyers now at fair prices. Most of the business is for local feed. We quote: No. 1 white, in western, on track, Winnipeg, per bushel, 41c; No. 2 white 40c to 42c; feed grades, 38c to 39c; At country points farmers are getting 38c to 40c for No. 2 white oats. Street oats are not offering.

COMING IN HUNDREDS.

Tribune, June 21.—One hundred and twenty-five young Scotsmen arrived in charge of Mr. T. Duncan today. They are a fine looking lot of young men, and they will be placed to work with established farmers in Manitoba.

A special train left Halifax on Thursday with immigrants on board for Western Canada. There are 384 booked to Winnipeg for other points, 106 for Ryther, 111 for Yorkton, 40 for Saltcoats, 15 for Shoal lake, 107 for Sifton, 102 for Edmonton, 10 for Basewood, 28 for Regina, 4 for Glenella and 6 for Crooked lake.

The new arrivals are Galicians, Germans, Hungarians and Russians.

HOMESTEAD ENTRIES.

During the month of May 247 homesteads were entered in the Edmonton district land office. There were 23 applications for patents and 850 letters, respecting lands, were received.

During the same month, 1901, 284 entries for homesteads were made. There were 32 applications for patents and 715 letters received.

During the month of May last it should, however, be remembered that the break in railway communication and mail service, by which Edmonton was 12 days without either passengers or mail, had a damaging effect on the entries.

Since July last the average quantity of land entered for has been 1000 acres per day.

Arid Regions of the United States.

Bradstreets.

According to the twenty-second annual report of the United States geological survey, the arid regions of the United States include about two-fifths of its entire area, and extend from about the middle of the continent westward nearly to the Pacific ocean. A broad intermediate subarid or subhumid belt, near the center of the United States, extends over North Dakota, South Dakota, western Nebraska, western Kansas and into Oklahoma and the panhandle of Texas. In very wet years the subhumid region creeps up to the foot hills of the Rocky Mountains; during dry years the greater part of the plains region west of the Missouri river becomes semiarid. Arid regions are those in which the average annual rainfall is twenty inches or less. Large tracts of Canada and Mexico, as well as of the United States and a great part of the countries of the old world, are according to our standard arid. Irrigation was the basis of agriculture, and therefore of the civilization of many of the ancient peoples, a fact of much significance to us.

If the surface of the globe were flat the rains would probably be distributed uniformly in broad bands parallel to the equator, but the uniform movement of the atmosphere is interfered with by lofty mountain masses. In the United States as a whole the general movement of the atmosphere is from west to east. The damp winds from the Pacific deposit their moisture on the high masses of the Sierra Nevada in the winter, and on the Rocky Mountains in the summer, leaving the broad lower plains lying east of each great mountain mass dry, sterile and desert-like. Thus the mountain ranges are well watered, while the lowlands are parched with drought. These arid lands, are, however, covered with a more or less scanty vegetation, only a small per cent being true desert lands, such as the Utah desert, west of the great Salt Lake, and the Mohave desert, in Southern California near the Colorado river.

One-third of the United States, exclusive of Alaska and outlying possessions, consists of vacant public lands. These lands lie for the most part in the arid region, and crops cannot be produced upon them nor settlers take them up for homesteads until a sufficient water supply has been obtained; then crops are abundant. It is for the interest of the public at large to have all of these good agricultural lands utilized. Who shall make their occupation by settlers possible? The answer must come from the lawmakers of the country, and they must be in possession of the facts in order to act intelligently. The laws governing the disposal of the public lands have been drawn almost wholly with reference to the lands of the Ohio and the Mississippi valley, with their sufficient rainfall. This rectangular system of subdivision of the public lands has been found detrimental to the best growth of the western two-fifths of the United States, because attention has been concentrated upon land titles, whereas first thought should have been given to water rights, through which alone the land has value. To remedy this evil for the remaining public lands, and to gather the facts upon which intelligent action can be based, is a patriotic duty. These facts pertain first of all to the water supply and its limitations. Irrigation, which concerns all citizens of the United States and their children's children, is the key to this situation. It is the duty of the highest citizenship to provide a hundred homes for independent farmers rather than to permit the land to be taken up as one or two great stock ranches, controlled by non-residents and furnishing employment to a few nomadic herdsmen.

The higher mountain slopes and mesas have a covering of trees. Within the arid and semiarid districts of the western states nearly 120,000,000 acres are covered with woodlands, and in addition, more than 75,000,000 acres are covered with commercial timber; about 470,000,000 acres are grazing land. Thus, as to area, the grazing industry will probably always be the great industrial pursuit. The open range of the region may support one cow to every twenty acres. The same land watered may support ten cows to twenty acres, or in orchards may support five persons to twenty acres. The open range may sell for 50 cents an acre; watered it may be worth $50 an acre, or in orchards $500 an acre. The grazing land has the greatest extent and the least value; the irrigated land the least extent and the greatest value.

Some of the actual desert lands in the United States produce nothing even when watered, as, for example, the broad flats adjacent to the Great Salt Lake in Utah and the lands around the Humboldt, Carson and Walker sinks in Nevada. Others, like the Mohave desert, near the Colorado river, in southwestern California, produce large crops when watered. Portions of these desert lands, therefore, are reclaimable by artesian wells or by reservoirs for storing the intermittent floods of the small streams flowing from the bordering mountains. It is most important that thorough geological examinations should ascertain the practicability of obtaining water by deep wells, and that such examinations should be verified by drilling a few wells to a depth sufficient to determine for a large desert area whether an artesian flow can be surely obtained.

Scrip in Manitoba.

Free Press; Scrip payments in Manitoba by Commissioner McKenna were finished on June 20th. Over 600 claims were presented to the commissioner during its sittings at Winnipeg. Forty of these claims were allowed. The greater part of the remainder were disallowed and a few were held for further consideration.

Asked as to what was the most common cause for rejecting claims, Mr. McKenna said that the majority of the applicants were born in the old province, their rights being previously extinguished under the Manitoba Act. Other applicants were born in the Territories, when their people were merely visiting there, the family residence being in the old province.

Then there were a number of claims from people who came from unseated territory, which means territory where the aboriginal rights have been extinguished and, consequently, they could have no claim.

There were also a few American half-breed applicants, and these included some very old people, a number of whom came a long distance from points in Minnesota and Dakota.

The Fernie Disaster—Verdict of Jury

"That, we, the said jury, find the initial cause of the explosion being at a point in No. 2 mine, aforesaid, not clearly defined, and that the said initial cause extended from the said undefined point throughout the greater portion of No. 2 and No. 3 mines, coal dust being the conveying medium, and we find in consequence that the inadequate method of watering and removing of the dust left the mine in such a condition as to be dangerous, and thereby provided a medium whereby the initial cause was augmented and intensified."

"That we, the said jury, recommend the government to take such steps to enforce (1) the immediate installation of the most approved system of watering for allaying dust in coal mines; (2) that a more thorough inspection be adopted at these mines throughout the old workings and rooms contiguous to the air channel that are not being worked; (3) that the safest explosives and most approved safety lamps be hereafter used."

Lieut.-Bruce Carruthers. Signalled Out. London, June 17.—The Official Gazette to-night publishes a long dispatch from Lord Roberts being a continuation of the field dispatches written when he was in command in South Africa. The communication throws no new light on the operations in the field.

Appended thereto is a long list of three signalled for distinguished mention. Lord Roberts speaks highly of the Canadian contingent, especially in connection with unsuccessful attack on Cookson's Camp, March 31, 1900, in which he says the Canadian Mounted Rifles sustained the heaviest loss of the day. He particularly comments on the gallantry of Lieut. Bruce Carruthers.

In conclusion Lord Roberts says he wishes to record the fact that in April 1900 Queen Victoria entrusted him with four wool scarfs worked by herself which she desired to be distributed to four distinguished private soldiers of the colonial contingents of Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. The selection of the regiments in each case was left to the colonial officers commanding the contingent. The Canadian scarf goes to Private now Lieut. Richard Rowland Thompson, of the Royal Canadian Regiment, late contingent (formerly of the 43rd Ottawa and Carleton Rifles), for personal gallantry in the field.

The Gazette has published dispatches received from Lord Kitchener dated April, 1902, which refer to the defeat and capture of General Methuen. In these messages Lord Kitchener expressed the opinion that General Methuen's reverse was due to the behavior of the bulk of the mounted troops of his command who offered a feeble and inefficient resistance and then left the infantry and the guns to struggle against superior numbers.

In another dispatch dated March 31, he refers to the action at Brakpan. Lord Kitchener praises highly the gallant stand made in this engagement by a handful of Canadians in an isolated position. In referring to this matter Lord Kitchener remarks, "There have been few finer instances of heroism in the whole course of the campaign."

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Beautiful weather continues. For twelve days, since Thursday, the 19th, the weather has been ideal for growth, considering that the ground was full of moisture at that time. The days have been warm, and bright, but not too hot and always a faint breeze blowing. The nights have been glorious. Growth is magnificent. Grain looks very well and although it is no further ahead than it was this time last year, it will be remembered that last year the growth stood still during July owing to extreme wet. If the present promise of good weather is fulfilled there will be both a great and early harvest. Roads have dried up wonderfully and travel is resumed in all directions, except where bridges have been swept away. The creeks are still high. Large quantities of oats are being hauled to town and are being sold at 30 cents a bushel. Hay is becoming more plentiful and new hay is appearing on the market.

STURGEON.

Bethel Methodist church was crowded to the doors last evening for the union hospital Sunday. Rev. Mr. Potter, pastor of the Namoo Presbyterian church, preached a very able sermon on the text, "I am the resurrection and the life," which was followed with great interest by the large congregation. The choir under the able guidance of Mr. Thomson, organist, and Miss Davis, rendered very appropriate music. Revs. T. C. Carson, Thacker and Glass took part in the services. A collection amounting to $11.25 was taken up in aid of the hospital. It is hoped that hospital Sunday may be observed each year by a union service.
